

2006 Gindroz Prize Winner Joshua Cummings

Joshua Cummings, 2006: “Architecture and Music: Creations of the Grand and the Intimate”

Josh began his travels in London, meeting Marilyn and Ray at the Prince’s Foundation for the Built Environment where Ray was lecturing. After the lecture and discussion, Josh joined the group for a lively dinner. Having arrived that very morning, he wisely sketched during the lecture and discussion to help keep himself awake.

He traveled throughout Europe, sleeping in hostels, studying and sketching buildings, photographing and meeting many new friends.

Josh has written, “The Gindroz prize was instrumental in my growth as a student and a person, and travel seems to continually yield many rewards. My hope ... is to pursue a graduate degree before an architectural registration stamp. “

Carnegie Mellon University